Toyota matris

Officially sold in North America until being discontinued, the Matrix was positioned as a sporty hatchback counterpart of the North American Corolla and was counted as a variant of it in Toyota's sales figures. Although identical mechanically, and nearly as much internally, the Matrix and Vibe had different sheetmetal and exterior trim designed by their respective brands. Both vehicles are narrow, tall station wagons styled in a quasi- SUV fashion called a crossover utility vehicle or "CUV" by Toyota and marketed to a fairly youthful market segment. First sold in February , [6] the Matrix saw a minor facelift for the model year , and was redesigned completely in for the model year, following the tenth generation Corolla. Sales of the Matrix were discontinued in the United States in and in Canada in The Matrix was first introduced in the model year and based on the Toyota Corolla platform. Two 1. While it did have standard air conditioning, it left out features like color-keyed mirrors and door handles, blacked out window frames and power mirrors. The Matrix's XR mid-grade trim level added features like color-matched mirrors and door handles, a leather-wrapped steering wheel, and a panic button on the key fob. Also included on all XRS models were anti-lock brakes with Electronic Brakeforce Distribution , inch alloy wheels, and cruise control. In , inch wheels could be had, but only on cars without a sunroof. While its With the exception of an available automatic in , a six-speed manual transmission was the only gearbox offered in the XRS. Not a trim level, the M-Theory edition was a only [23] appearance package with an exclusive "Speedway Blue" color. To improve handling, a "sport tuned suspension" and strut tower brace were included. Made with rigid plastic backs, the rear seats fold flat, creating a Up front, the passenger seat also folds flat, accommodating long items like surf boards or allowing drivers to use the tray in its back to hold items like a laptop computer. NHTSA crash test ratings : [27]. In May , Toyota issued a recall for and model year Corollas and Matrixes. The recall notice cites two bolts in each of the front doors as potentially causing the window to come off the track and break. This recall only applies to models equipped with power windows. On November 20, , along with Corollas and and Yarises , the Matrix of the model years from to was recalled in Mexico due to these cars containing Takata frontal passenger airbags which might degrade due to weather exposure and variation of high temperatures, which usually occurs on cities with extreme weather, which might cause serious injuries on passengers. Toyota has advised all owners of the following cars to replace these faulty frontal passenger airbags or all airbags, depending of which version is. The replacing campaign will go due November Initially rumored by Toyota and auto news media as a Matrix replacement named the Blade, [33] the second generation Matrix was unveiled on October 31, , at the Specialty Equipment Market Association SEMA show in Las Vegas , and was first available at dealerships in February , as a model. The former is offered with either a five-speed manual or four-speed automatic transmission , while the larger engine is equipped with either a manual or automatic five-speed transmission. Canadian buyers are offered in four trim levels: a 1. This generation marks it the first time it is sold in Mexico. For the model year, the Matrix received redesigned exterior and interior elements, including front and rear fascias, wheels and seat fabrics. The radio was also change to allow for Bluetooth capability. In , Toyota began offering different trim levels in the United States and Canada. All vehicles have an independent front suspension with MacPherson struts , [32] but only XRS trim and cars equipped with all-wheel drive and horsepower, feature an independent rear suspension using double wishbones instead of a semi-independent torsion beam. The XRS trim was dropped from the U. All models come standard with side torso airbags , side curtain airbags , anti-lock braking and electronic brakeforce distribution. NHTSA crash test ratings : [44]. The to model year Matrix and its Vibe relative are subject to the â€" Toyota vehicle recalls regarding floor mat and accelerator pedal replacement. On October 10, , Toyota issued a recall for model year Corolla and Matrix, along with 10 other models. The repair involves lubricating the switch assembly with a special fluorine grease. On August 5, , Toyota announced that it would end production of the Matrix for the US market after the model year due to declining sales, and that there were no plans to replace it with another vehicle. On September 1, , "the Scion brand transitioned to Toyota. For the model year, the newest iteration has been released as the Corolla hatchback. From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia. I get a text message from a guy named Brandon asking me if we can communicate by text message, I inform him immediately yes because I want this vehicle, and I don't hear anything more from him or the dealership at all. I sent several messages after that asking him what was going on, and I don't hear anything! I tried to click on the link that I had to view the advertisement for the vehicle on the edmunds. The vehicle was available when Brandon reached out to me, but then suddenly it's gone! If you have a customer pending waiting to come look at the vehicle and purchase the vehicle you tell the people to call after him that hey we have somebody that's interested in looking at the vehicle so you'll have to wait until we know what they're going to do! This company has no ethics for it to have done what it is done and ignore me and my communications with them! I would not recommend any parent ever go to this company to buy a vehicle, and any parent that has a disabled child that buys a vehicle from this company after reading this review, should feel more than ashamed of themselves for help supporting a company that would leave a disabled bad in the position that I am in with a disabled child after having communicated with them about buying a vehicle that they sold after I had told them I was interested in it!
